THE PREFACE.

AMONG all the Privileges of our Nation, there is none more considerable than that of being represented in Parliament: This is what Foreigners lament the Want of in their Constitutions, and what we look upon as the Happiness of our Own. But whatever Advantages we derive from this Representation, they are owing only to a Fair One; to a Freedom of Elections, which, as it is essential to the Constitution of our Parliament, is necessary also to make them desirable. Take away this Freedom, and the very End of their Institution is destroyed; and they may be made the Source of as many Miseries to the Nation, as they were originally designed to be of Blessings to it.

Whatever Actions, therefore, intrench upon this Freedom, are of the most dangerous Nature to the Community; They strike at the Constitution it self, and are not barely Invasions of this or that Man's Right, who is particularly affected by them, but are Offences against the Nation in general, Invade it's most valuable Privileges, and call for the Resentment (because they undermine the Happiness) of every Man in it. Such being the Nature of them, a Man cannot take a more effectual Way to shew how perfectly disengaged he is from that tender Regard to the Rights of his Fellow-Subjects; that Adherence to our Constitution; that Love of his Countrey, which every Man ought to have; than by being guilty of them.

Little Fellows may be supposed not to see into the Nature and Consequences of such Actions: The World does not expect much of a publick Spirit from them. And when it sees Halbard-men (tho' appointed on Pretence of other Ends) refuse Admittance to Freeholders coming up to give their Votes at the Place of Polling, unless they would purchase their Passage with Money; it finds no great Occasion of Surprise. When Applications too are made to the Selfishness of some Persons, and Temptations offered to the Necessities of others, in the Way of Bribery, Usage (which will reconcile Men to any Thing) lessens the Sense of the Iniquity and Shamefulness of such Practices, and takes away the Wonder of them. But 'tis otherwise when we see Persons invested with the Power of Administring Justice, using it to such a Purpose, by taking away Licences; putting a Stop to Prosecutions for criminal Matters; remitting Fines to Persons obnoxious to the Penalties of some Laws; and ordering all this so as might more effectually over-rule the Judgments of Men, and destroy the Freedom of their Votes. But even these Practices are not so extraordinary, as that of sending a Message to a Commissioner in the Peace, and threatening him with the Loss of his Commission, unless he altered his Design, and voted contrary to the Interest he had espoused.

But 'tis still more remarkable, for any Director in a Poll, to allow a Person to poll a second Time, in opposition to an evident Proof, that he had already polled; to receive on one Side the Votes of Persons paying only to the Window Tax, and reject the like Persons, when offering their Votes on the other; to encourage a Riot in the Face of a Country, and order Men to be knocked down, tho' coming for no other End than to deliver their Votes; to assume an Authority of judging such Poll, and under Colour thereof to reject Votes, without any publick Examination, or even the Presence or Notice of the interested Person, and then to refuse a List of the Voters he pretended to reject: Such Practices seem not altogether agreeable to the Trust reposed in such Director; A Trust of the highest Nature as relating to the Choice of the Representatives to compose that Body which has our Estates, our Liberties, our Lives, our All, in their Disposal.

To be false to so high a Trust is never to be excused by any Temptation, however great and sudden. But to undertake such Trust, and even solicit it with Views of Partiality, and to violate it with Deliberation, are terrible Enhancements of the Evil of such a Conduct, and shew such a Disregard to the strongest Obligations, as is not consistent but with an uncommon Meanness of Nature.

Of all Natures, a mercenary One is the most contemptible; and as some Circumstances paint the Mind, and Disposition of the Actor, in more expressive Colours than the Action it self, it will never give us any great Idea of a Man, or be much to the Advantage of his Character, to see him, in a Case where Justice is of the last Importance, wrought up to Partiality by Promises; and to a Breach of Trust, by a Prospect of an Indemnity, and Assurance of Reimbursement.

Mean as such a Conduct is, it is yet less shocking to Religion, than the tempting Men to Perjury, a Practice which, whilst the Property, Liberty, and Life of every Man depends on the Sacredness of an Oath, and the Sense of the tremendous Nature and Obligation of it, undeniably lessens the Security of all these. Yet such is the tempting or engaging Persons to poll, who have no Right to such Privilege: A Matter of the highest Injustice to the true Electors, who are certainly ill used, whilst, as to their greatest Privileges, it puts Others on a Level with them who only have a Right by our Constitution. And whenever Complaints of such Nature come to be loud and frequent, it can never be improper to lay them before the Publick, whose Rights it affects so nearly. He is dead who would have asserted them in another Manner; and it becomes every Lover of his Memory, to shew his Regard to it, by pursuing his Measures; and every Lover of his Country, to unite against such Practices, as evidently tend to the Ruin of our Constitution.

By his Direction, the Alphabet in the following Sheets was first composed, and is now published to the World: In the preparing of which, the Publisher has been under great Diffi-

*Difficulty to ascertain the Places of Abode, where the Towns are written or spelt in the same or like Manner : (Some of which Towns are specified below ) In many Instances such Towns are not distinguished in the Poll-Books ; In which Case, the Publisher has made use of the best Information he could get for that Purpose. He has been very careful to make the Alphabet exactly agreeable to the Poll-Books which the Sheriff delivered to the Use of Mr. Mundy, without any Regard to the Variances observable therein from the Books written by Mr. Mundy's Clerks, except in the particular Instances hereafter mentioned. He owns, indeed, he has sometimes inserted particular Seats or Houses under the Parish or Place wherein the same are situate ; but then he has also distinguished the Name of such Seat. That in a few Instances he has mentioned the two Readings, with an alias, thereby to acquaint his Reader with those particular Differences : And he has also subjoined a Schedule of some others. But in no Respect has he designedly varied, as to the Vote of any Person whatever.

As to the ranging the Towns under their respective Hundreds, and the spelling the Names of such Towns, he has chiefly followed Mr. Burton, where he had not Evidence or Information to the contrary.

One Thing he desires may be observed to prevent a Charge against a Person to whom he is an utter Stranger, viz. That there are indeed, in the Sheriff's Poll-Books, two William Waltons of Castle Donington, and the Publisher has accordingly inserted two of that Name in the Alphabet of that Town : But, for certain Reasons, he is apt to believe, that one of the Insertions in the Sheriff's Books, happened through the Inadvertency of the Copier.

London, March 31,

* Waltham, Walton on the Woulds, Walton Isely, Walton juxta Kincote.

Schedule of Variances referr'd to in the Preface.

P. 83. Under Arnesby, Chamberlain Thomas is inserted, but no Place of Abode or Freehold specified in the Sheriff's Copy.

P. 96, 125, 156, and 158. The Names Grocock, Dalison, Champantny, and Kinsbury, inserted instead of Grosfolk, Tallison, Jampantry, and Kingsbord.

Under Staffordshire, the Town of Shenton, instead of Shepeshead.

Under Warwickshire, the Towns of Clifton, Pelton, and Laughford l. inserted instead of Clifford, Felton. Taffly.

The other Differences being only in the Manner of Spelling, or in using sometimes the Letters, Cl. or D. D. instead of Rector; or, in a very few Instances, the additional Style of Esq; &c. the Publisher has not distinguished them, as thinking them too minute to deserve the Name of Variances.
